

ABSTRACT

A method of scoring for a variety of games incorporated as a single event for players or teams. This scoring method allows a variety of games to be played singularly by individuals, or singularly in a team format, with the composite scores across all games played determining the finishing position of the contestants. The scoring method uses a combination of bracketed play and net (actual) score play, depending on the individual games that comprise the competition.